Will Sue On Bonds Furnished On Asylum Contract

CONCRETE BLOCK ROW TO START AGAIN

The contract for the erection of the new Insane Asylum buildings, which was the cause of much excitement and fighting during the beginning of the year expired a few days ago, Oct. 12, to be exact, and the bitter struggle between the Department of Public Works and the American-Hawaiian Engineering and Construction Co. will be resumed with renewed vigor in the near future.

The row was started because of the clause in the contract, which called for the construction of the buildings with a concrete block manufactured under a certain pressure. The contracting company claimed that a block such as called for by the specifications of the contract, could not be made and that for this reason the performance of the contract was impossible. They said that no machine had been invented which could manufacture such blocks, although, as Superintendent of Public Works Holloway stated this morning, they later admitted in a letter that such a machine would be too expensive.

On the other hand, the Public Works Department claimed that the blocks could be made as specified and that machines which could make them were for sale in the open market. In the height of the fray it was charged that the contract had been framed in such a manner that only one firm of contractors could make an advantageous bid, as they placed their reliance on a block-making machine designed by President L. E. Pinkham of the Board of Health, which had not yet been completed, but which Architect Beardslee, who made the plans for the new asylum buildings, was well aware existed.

Governor Carter took the matter up personally, but after voluminous correspondence and exhaustive hearings it was found that no headway could be made in the matter, the American-Hawaiian people refusing to go ahead with the work as long as the pressed concrete block was insisted on.

It was then decided that the best thing to do was to await the time (Continued on Page 4.)

OUR POLICY HOLDERS MAY ASK FOR REPRESENTATION

"I tell you what it is," said Senator L. L. McCandless this morning, "a good man with $25,000 could become president of the New York Life Insurance Company if he set it out right. Sure, I believe it could be done. It would take about $25,000 in advertising throughout the various States to get the proxies. You get the proxies and you get the votes. Take a man like C. M. Cooke, I bet he could become president of that company if he set out and it wouldn't cost more than $25,000."

"Why don't you set out for it, Senator?" remarked the insurance man.

"Me? Well, I've other things to attend to," rejoined the Senator. "But the policy holders are so stirred up over these matters I think they would give their proxies to men in whom they had confidence and who are not in the present ring."

"Aside from that however I think the policy holders in Hawaii should get together and have a representative on the board of management. I have a policy in the New York Life. It will mature in a year or so and I for one am interested."

EXPERT COWBOYS GRAND EXHIBITION

No sporting announcement has ever been received with greater interest in this city than that of the Cowboys' festa to take place at Kapiolani Park next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The exhibition will be a novelty here and arrangements have been facilitated owing to the number of expert cowboys from the big Parker Ranch now in Honolulu.

Those who know pronounce the skill of Hawaiian cowboys to be the equal of that displayed by experts anywhere, not excepting the famous cow punchers of Wyoming and Texas.

The exhibition will not only be spectacular and clever but entirely free from any degree of brutality and a performance is promised that will be as pleasing to the ladies as to the gentlemen. The show will be exciting from beginning to end and the marvelous manner of handling wild steers is bound to win the enthusiastic plaudits of the crowd.

The big race-track grandstand is being put in order for the occasion and will seat about 1500 people. Owing to the wild nature of the cattle it is not expected that spectators will choose places of observation except in the grandstand which is perfectly safe from the wildest rampage of any escaped steer. Carriages may be left outside the enclosure but not near enough to the performers for occupants to see the show.

The Hawaiian band will be on hand to lend extra spirit to the occasion and there is nothing like music coming in at the proper time. They will contest with the Oahu boys from Honolulu and Lelehu ranches for the championship of the Islands. Splendid prizes will be offered for the shortest time achieved in roping and tying and other events.

Arrest Under The New Law

The first arrests under the County's new ordinance in regard to gambling were made this afternoon. Officer Chas. F. Rose, Special Officer Yee Yee and Officer Geo. Wright taking into custody thirty-two Chinese caught indulging in a gambling game, presumably paikau, behind barred doors and windows in the second story of the Liliha stables, on Liliha street, a little above King street.

Ah Sing, alias Sing Tai, a member of the Chinese club which conducts the stables, according to his own account, appeared at the police receiving station at 2 p. m. and put up $10 bail for each alleged offender. The accused are to appear in Police Court tomorrow afternoon.

Asked as to why he should put up bail for the Chinese, Ah Sing, alias Sing Tai, told a Bulletin reporter that he was a principal member of a Chinese "benefit society," an organization "for Chinese to help each other" and it was up to him to furnish bail for his fellow members.

"You see," said the man with the bail money, "I have too many cousins been arrested. I help my cousins and I help for the society, too."

This case is likely to prove a test of the new County gambling ordinance, which, among other things, provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any person within the limits of the County of Oahu to exhibit or expose to view in any room or house or place or barricaded or otherwise built or protected in a manner to make it difficult of access or ingress to police officers when three or more persons are present, any cards, dice, dominoes, or any gambling table or layout, or any part of such layout, or any other gambling implements whatsoever used in any game of faro, monte, roulette, tan, fan tan, or any banking or percentage game played with cards, dice, dominoes, or any device for money, checks, credit or any representative of value or any other game in which money or anything of value is lost or won."

Judge Robinson this afternoon granted Takata, charged with assault and battery with a weapon, permission to withdraw his plea of not guilty in order that a demurrer could be filed to the indictment. J. W. Cathart, the defendant's counsel, gave notice that he would demur on the grounds of the phrase of the indictment, which states that the defendant's true name was to before.

MUST SIGN BOND FOR WEDDING PRESENTS

J. A. Johnson, of C. Brewer & Co., with his bride, who was Miss Jean Lindsay, will arrive here from San Francisco in the Sonoma. They were wedded in San Francisco on September 30 and took passage on the Alameda, having aboard a large number of valuable and useful, not to forget handsome, wedding presents.

These presents were shipped in the Nevada, but remain on the wharf, unopened, awaiting the arrival of Mr. Johnson to sign the "general average bond" before he can receive the goods.

If the wedding gifts including furniture, cut glass, china-ware, etc., etc., are damaged, was the steamship company for damage suits galore.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Johnson will be at home at their beautiful College Hills cottage on November 15.

LYDECKER MAKES VALUABLE FIND

Archibald Lydecker has made an other interesting find while delving in the musty books and crannies of the Capitol for old documents. He found in the closets of the Governor's office a number of old books dating from 1844 until 1889, in which the names of those who called on the sovereigns, who sat on the throne of Hawaii during that period, have been inscribed. In most cases by the callers themselves. A more interesting collection of old autographs it would be hard to find. Mixed among the names of prominent Hawaiians who died long ago, but whose names are still familiar to the generation of today, one finds the signatures of various celebrated persons from the outer world, who happened to pass by Honolulu many years ago.

The first of those books was started in 1844, the first entry being: "George Brown, Esq., United States Commissioner, to pay his respects to His Majesty on his coming to Honolulu."

This is followed by: "R. C. Wyllie, Esq., H. B. M. Pro-Consul, to present his respects to His Majesty and the respects of Admiral Thomas."

This is followed by pages and pages of entries, among them being numerous lists of officers of various naval vessels who called to pay their respects.

Senator McCandless Is Candidate For Hawaii's Washington Delegate

INTEREST IN NEXT CAMPAIGN ALREADY KEEN

Senator L. L. McCandless, better known among his friends as "Link" McCandless, is out for the Republican nomination at the next general election, November, 1906, for Hawaii's delegate to Congress.

This fact has been whispered around for a day or two. Today the Senator was asked by a Bulletin reporter if he was going to work for the nomination.

"Yes, I am out for it. If it is to be had," replied the Senator. "And why not?" he added—"I can depend on my Hawaiian friends, I'm sure, for good support."

At first Mr. McCandless absolutely refused to have anything to say for publication on the matter of his candidacy; it was too early to talk, "and all that sort of thing, don't you know." But, early as it is, the political movement toward a strenuous campaign for next year's election is already defining itself. Everywhere are politicians earnestly discussing the situation, the probabilities and the possibilities.

Democrats are watching with keen interest the first move in the Republican campaign, to wit, the revision of party rules. Home Rulers, while declaring against fusion with the Democrats, are nevertheless privately asserting that fusion is bound to be the move in the event of the Republicans putting up certain men. Leading Republicans are realizing that the most careful preparations are necessary to ultimate success and one has declared that absolute harmony must prevail among Republicans or the next House of Representatives will be without a Republican member. The Civic Federation is an element to be seriously considered and every precaution, in the revision of party rules, will be taken to prevent so-called civic reformers from spoiling the campaign through alleged disinterested civic methods which cover nothing but trickery.
